How stupid life would be, both in labor and in leisure, without the gaiety within us which responds to the cheerfulness and beauty around us. Nay, its main currents run all the deeper, as well as fresher and purer, for the light thrills of joyousness that, laughing and flashing, flow into them. The rivers would stagnate into pools if the rivulets ceased to play. THE CHILDREN'S HOUR.

BY HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW.

Between the dark and the daylight,
When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in the day's occupation
That is known as the Children's Hour.

I hear in the chamber above me
The patter of little feet,
The sound of a door that is opened,
And voices soft and sweet.

From my study I see in the lamplight,
Descending the broad hall stairs,
Grave Alice and laughing Alice,
And Edith with golden hair.

A whisper, and then a silence;
Yet I know by their merry eyes
They are plotting and planning together
To take me by surprise.

A sudden rush from the stairway,
A sudden raid from the hall,
By three doors left unguarded
They enter my castle wall.

They climb up into my turret,
Open the shutters of my chair;
If I try to escape, they surround me,Till I think of the Mouse-Tower on the Rhine!

They almost devour me with kisses,
Their arms around me entwining,
Till I think of the Bishop of Milan
In the Mouse-Tower on the Rhine!

Do you think, O blue-eyed handmaid,
Because you have sealed the wall,
That an old mousehole as I am
Is not a snare for you all?

I have you fast in my fortress,
And will not let you depart,
But put you down in the dungeons
In the round-wood of my heart.

And there will I keep you forever,
Yes, forever and a day,
Till the walls shall crumble to ruin,
And moulder in dust away!

Miscellaneous.

"Virtuous Children."

A good tempered, well-mannered child, is one of the most beautiful and blessed things of earth—the divinely human bud of a divinely flowering humanity. If children knew how much, by pleasant courtesy to one another and cheerful obedience to their parents, they can command of admiration and love, they would surely cultivate good behavior and delight in it. In the social economy of the Chinese, reverence towards parents and the aged, is regarded and punished as the most culpable act of childhood. Hence the universal modest and humble deportment of Chinese youth. They are not accustomed to nick-names and bickerings among themselves, and their intercourse with their elders is always deferential. These admirable habits of childhood, encouraged and cultivated by all proper consideration on the part of their parents and society, as well as by fundamental edicts of the State, seldom forsake them in maturer years.

"Honor thy father, and thy mother," is one of the Divine commandments, and the just punishment of childish irreverence towards the aged, may be learned from the history of the children who mocked Elijah. First of all, let children honor their parents—and if they honor, they will love and obey them. Let them avoid evil communications and evil companions. Let them keep their hearts and their tongues pure. Let them be sincere and honest. Let them speak the truth always—no matter what the temptation to falsehood, speak the truth—truthfulness in childhood is the chiefest of jewels.

The Good-bys.

"George—George!"

"Well, what's wanting now?"

The young husband turned back the door knob, and there was impatience in his tone and annoyance on his brow as he answered his wife's call.

"Nothing, papa, only baby and I just want to kiss you good-bye," and she came toward him, the graceful, sweet voiced woman, with her baby in her arms, and held up the soft face to his cheeks, and the little one crowded, and thrust up his dimpled hands, and clutched the short thick locks triumphantly.

"Oh, baby, you rogue, you'd like to pull out a handful of papa's hair, wouldn't you now?" laughed the merchant, in a tone so unlike his former one, that you would not have recognized it, and he leaned down and kissed the small fragrant lips.

"Now, it's my turn, papa!" and Mrs. Williams smoothed away the rumpled hair and kissed her husband's forehead; and as he went out of the house that morning a new softness and peace had erased the troubled look from the man's face.

And that day it was appointed to George Williams to pass through a sharp and fearful temptation.

He was in the midst of a commercial crisis, and several of his heaviest debtors had failed that week, and now a payment of twelve thousand dollars was due and there was no way to raise the sum unless—

He held the pen irresolutely in his sinking hand. The veins were swollen on his forehead, and the breath came thick and fast between his hot lips; a few scrawls of that pen, a solitary name at the bottom, and the young merchant could secure the ten thousand dollars, and his business credit would be safe. There was no sort of doubt, too, but he could raise the money in a few days, and secure himself from all discovery, and the pressing circumstances of the case certainly allowed some limits in financiering.

So whispered the tempter, as he walked up and down the soul of George Williams, always softening down the word forgery into some false name, which totally changed to his perceptions the moral complexion of the deed he was about to commit.

The young merchant glared all around the office, but there was none to see him then; he dipped his pen with a kind of desperate eagerness, into the tall porcelain ink-stand, and he drew it along the paper, when suddenly his hand paused, struck by a thought—the memory of his wife's kiss that morning.

He saw her as he saw her last, standing in the door, the baby in her arms, her sweet face full of motherly tenderness and wifely love, as she lifted it to him in parting; the voice of the tempter passed away before that rush of holier emotion which blurred the man's eyes; he dashed down the pen—

"Mary! Mary! you have saved your husband; I should blush for shame to meet your eyes and our baby's to-night if I carried the burning consciousness in my soul, though no other man did or would. Mary, my little wife, you won't know it, but that good-bye kiss of yours this morning has saved your husband from this great sin."

George Williams did not sink. It was a hard struggle, but the storm passed by without falling on him as it did on many others, and Mary, his wife, never knew that she had saved her husband from a sin which in her eyes would have been worse than death.

The good which we have done we shall know, "not here but hereafter," and the best and truest lives are those which strew all the years with the sweet aromas of loving and self-sacrificing deeds.

As the water-lilies take root, and grow silently amid the slime and mud in the low waters, until in midsummer they open their creamy vases to the soft persuasions of the sunshine, and lie in snowy flotillas on the bosoms of the streams, the glory and idolization of all flowers, so amid the lowlands of life, among its shadows and mists, have we also to sow day by day our small seeds of gentle and generous deeds, not knowing when they take root, or expecting to behold their unfolding blossoms on the river of time.

O, ye who sigh to set your lives with the arabesques of great and noble deeds, who pant for broader horizons, and higher opportunities, God has appointed you a work where you are.

Every day lifts up its white chalice out of the night, and its held down to you through all its solemn, silent footed hours, for those small labors of love, whose true significance and relations we shall only understand in eternity.

And in this small daily labor lies much of woman's work, and her sweet home influences fall like the sunshine and the evening dew, upon the characters around her.

She may little comprehend what a silent force of healing, restraining, strengthening influences she is exerting; and periods of unrest and despondency may fill many hours with shadows, which would be illuminated with joy and thanksgiving, if she could only "know as she knoweth."

But the pictures of all our lives are locked up in the eternal galleries, and the angels hold the keys, and when God's voice speaks the word, the doors shall be opened, and when we go in we shall all "behold" and understand.

"Papa, can't I go to the zoological rooms to see the comminable fight the ryo-sir-co-hoss?" "Sartin, my son, but don't get your trousers torn. Strange, my dear, what a taste that boy has got for natural history. No longer than yesterday he had eight tom-cats hanging by their tails to the clothes line."

The Yankee Pedlar.

The importance of supporting your own stock if you are going into the wool business, is very emphatically enforced in the following story, that comes to us from a very agreeable correspondent:

Some years ago I was travelling on the eastern shore of Maryland, and stopped for the night at the house of a gentleman by the name of Jones. He was not at home, but his wife received me very politely, though I was in the capacity of a traveling merchant, a peripatetic vender of notions, vulgarly called a pedlar; she made a few purchases of articles useful in the family, and might have bought more, had not Mr. Jones returned unexpectedly, and at once commenced to abuse me most foundly, and said he didn't want any pedlars about his house. I gave him back the change in his own coin until he cooled down when I asked him what made him mad at all gentlemen of my business? He told me:

"A few months ago a Yankee pedlar was about here selling his tin ware and taking pay in anything he could get. My neighbor, Mr. Brown, had a very troublesome ram. One time he jumped the fence and got into the wheat, and another day into the corn; and was always where he had no business to be. One day, just as the farmer got him out and tied him up, this pedlar came along and wanted to sell his tin ware. Mr. Brown said he would sell him the old ram, and take his pay in tin. The pedlar took him up, offering him two dollars' worth of his truck for the ugly old sheep. The farmer agreed, picking out his tin things, and the pedlar hoisted the ram, with legs tied, into his confounded old cart, and drove right along here to my house, and had the impudence, yes the scoundrel had! to tell me the ram had been imported from England by order of one of the rich farmers, Jeffers, down the country, and he had agreed to take it to him. It cost $200 on landing, and he was to have $250 when he delivered it to Mr. Jeffers, but he was so tired of having the plaguy thing in his wagon, that he would take $100 for it, the first chance he could get. I was quite anxious to improve my stock, and thought this so fine an opportunity to buy an imported full-blood, as the rascal warranted it to be, that I paid the fellow $100 and he cut the strings and let the ram run. Sure enough, he did run, full split, right over the fence, and I after him, and my niggers coming out. In fifteen minutes, my ram, niggers and I, fetched up in Brown's yard, when I found I had been sold, as well as that rascally old sheep. Before I got back, the pedlar had sold ten dollars' worth of wooden nutmegs and nonsense to my wife, and had gone off to parts unknown. He never came this way again; and if you are one of that sort, you had better put up your traps and be moving."

Great Outpouring of the People in New Oxford.

The Adams Sentinel, of New Oxford, Pa., has been the recipient of a large number of letters from friends of the cause, who have been informed of the meeting to be held at New Oxford, on Saturday evening, the 26th inst., at 8 o'clock, P. M.

The Republican Association of New Oxford, having been previously announced, that speakers would address the meeting. We thought it would be merely a common association meeting, but we were greatly disappointed. Early in the evening, a delegation from various townships came pouring in, with music and banners flying.

At seven o'clock, the Abbotstown delegation made their appearance to the number of about 300, with the ever "Wide Awake" at their head. The order being given to light, in less than five minutes the immense hall was filled with the throngs of the "Wide Awake" in a perfect blaze which made the pale-faced moon hide its face for shame. With the "brilliantly lighted" hall, the "Wide Awake" as the Abbotstown delegation passed, cheer after cheer made the welkin ring for honest Abe.

The order of Right wheel into line—all fell into motion as follows:

And then the large concourse of citizens, after parading the streets, the large assembly hall in front of the school-house, in which were denied admission by a democratic board. "Well, it would not have held one-half of the number. The meeting was called to order by Capt. A. W. Stahl. Mr. John H. Brough was loudly called for, and the gentleman upon mounting his stand was greeted with three hearty cheers. It is impossible for me to give entire the eloquent, patriotic and soul-stirring appeal of Mr. Brough. I will try to give you some extracts. Mr. Brough said:

"Mr. President and Fellow Citizens: Called, as we are, together to counsel with each other in a contest of great principles, for the consummation of honest and true ends; it behooves us to be 'wide awake,' and have our lamps well trimmed so that their blaze may be seen from 10,000 hills; lighting the way for Freedom to free homes, through our virgin Territorial soil, even to the foot of the Rocky Mountains. The spectacle is enough to send a thrill of joy and pride through every American heart. With the lamp lighting the paths through corrupt Administrations, fearing that lest the Free man in his onward search for free homes might not be impeded by the Squatting subject of him 'who cares not whether slavery is voted up or down,' and this, this, is the man who claims to be the 'Great Champion of Freedom.'"

"In 1844 they said we Polked you, in 1852 we Polked you, in 1856 we Bucked you. Yes, and with you Polked, you Polked; and you, in 1856, by a minority of the popular vote you Bucked yourselves into office; and your aim, into the Public Treasury, and now, sir, it is our turn. In 1860, we intend to ride you out of Washington, out of office, and out of the Treasury. On what? Why on a rail. (Cheers.) They are already split, we shall now maul you, and with Abraham Lincoln to lay the wain we shall forever fence you within the domains of 10 cent Jimmy, at Wheatland (cheers and bravo.)"

"It is impossible to give you the entire address; suffice it to say that Mr. Brough dealt the Democracy heavy and stinging blows which at the close of his address were received with deafening cheers.

"Mr. Frank Hersh being next loudly called for, appeared upon the stand and cut right and left with the two edged sword of justice, showing the direful consequences of slavery, should it be carried into our Territories. 'Slavery' exists by local law, no such word as 'slave' being found in the Constitution of the United States. We know the principles of Mr. Breckenridge. We know that he upholds the administration of James Buchanan. We all know where the Dred Scott decision carries slavery; and, sir, with all this knowledge are you content to place in power a man who is openly and avowedly in favor of permitting the slaveholder with his 100 slaves to settle down in a Free Territory and that they shall be on an equality with the free white laboring man. No. Your vote will be put upon it at the November election. And here Mr. Hersh spoke of our candidate for Governor, Andrew G. Curtin, and the interests of Pennsylvania, together with the popularity of the Candidates on our County ticket. Mr. Hersh's weak lungs not permitting him to speak long in the open air, he politely gave way for other speakers, when again cheers made the welkin ring. Dr. Pfeiffer, the staunch old Republican, being called for, with difficulty mounted the stand amid enthusiastic cheers. Dr. Pfeiffer being nearly 73 years of age, with weak lungs, but with great intellect, spoke at some length. He said that as the Democrats were getting alarmed at the 'Wide Awake' were determined to raise a club called the 'Fast Asleeps.' He said that they had been sleeping with our flag for a covering inscribed with Democracy on it, and when given awake and raised his head, he was given a soup made of puppe's broth, and 10 quacks of small post-offices, laid down again and forced to shut their eyes and go to sleep; and that it was soon time that the 'Wide Awake' were rousing them from their slumbers. After giving three cheers for the Dr. and our Candidates, the 'Wide Awake' fell into line, and had a splendid parade through every street, and at every corner were greeted with cheers, not one word being heard from those in the show. The Breckenridge wing held a meeting the same time at Mr. Beck Hotel, where Dr. Pfeiffer of Abbotstown indulged in a tirade of abuse and lies, which disgusted many of their own party.

The Republican Association of New Oxford, having been previously announced, that speakers would address the meeting. We thought it would be merely a common association meeting, but we were greatly disappointed. Early in the evening, a delegation from various townships came pouring in, with music and banners flying.

At seven o'clock, the Abbotstown delegation made their appearance to the number of about 300, with the ever "Wide Awake" at their head. The order being given to light, in less than five minutes the immense hall was filled with the throngs of the "Wide Awake" in a perfect blaze which made the pale-faced moon hide its face for shame. With the "brilliantly lighted" hall, the "Wide Awake" as the Abbotstown delegation passed, cheer after cheer made the welkin ring for honest Abe.

The order of Right wheel into line—all fell into motion as follows:

Abbotstown: "Wide Awake"—Capt. Frank Wilson, men with banners and musical music. "New Oxford: "Wide Awake"—Capt. James Hersh, men with musical music.

And then the large concourse of citizens, after parading the streets, the large assembly hall in front of the school-house, in which were denied admission by a democratic board. "Well, it would not have held one-half of the number. The meeting was called to order by Capt. A. W. Stahl. Mr. John H. Brough was loudly called for, and the gentleman upon mounting his stand was greeted with three hearty cheers. It is impossible for me to give entire the eloquent, patriotic and soul-stirring appeal of Mr. Brough. I will try to give you some extracts. Mr. Brough said:

A Change.

A gentleman of this place, who has hitherto been an active member of the Democratic party, and frequently delivered addresses in its behalf, called upon us yesterday, and informed us that he had come to the conclusion that he could no longer conscientiously support that party, believing their doctrine unsound, and not in agreement with his honestly conceived opinions, and that, in consequence, he would give his hearty support to Lincoln and Hayes. We welcome him into our ranks, and hope many more honest Democrats will follow his example.

"The Republicans, feeling that they have not one sound principle to present to the intelligence of the masses, resort to various dodges," &c.

So says the Compiler. Now what a whopper! This is not one of that paper's ordinary jobs—but a real, genuine Simon-pure one. Look at the Chicago Platform, containing the principles of the People's Party and the Republicans, and on which we stand, and if you can find an unsound principle there, we will acknowledge you have for once told the truth. Now, friend of the Compiler, publish that platform, and point out an unsound plank in it, if you can. We challenge you to the issue—don't back out, and content yourself with week after week reiterating your sophistical, twisting, quibbling articles as you have done for weeks. You well know the timbers are sound and you can make no impression upon it—you therefore dare not approach it, as a man of power and conscious right.

In the flouring of the Compiler, it sometimes renders itself ridiculous. For example, because Abraham Lincoln was once a farm hand, and made his living by mowing rails, and doing all the other labor of the farm, it ridicules him, and nicknames him the "rail-splitter," &c. &c. Now, just look at an article in his issue of Monday, and see how supremely ridiculous is his position. He says:

"Our nominees for Congress (Mr. SCHILL) was a poor boy, compelled to earn his daily bread; having educated himself wholly by his own exertions, he read law, was admitted to the bar," &c.

And yet, forsooth, because ABRAHAM LINCOLN did the same thing—earned his daily bread—educated himself wholly by his own exertions—read law—and was admitted to the bar—he must be nicknamed a "rail-splitter"—while Mr. SCHILL is everything that is great, and good, and honorable. We again repeat—how ridiculous!

Christ Church, (Lutheran) is now lighted with gas. The large chandelier which hung from the centre of the ceiling has been removed, and four beautiful gas chandeliers with three burners each, supply its place. These, with the other lights distributed at proper intervals at the pulpit and on the gallery, brilliantly illuminate the building and add much to its interior appearance.

Highly Important from Europe. An arrival from Europe brings the highly important intelligence that Garibaldi had entered the City of Naples, and that a Provisional Government had been formed, the King having fled. He conquered the fleet and a naval of Naples to the charge of Admiral Pasqua, and proclaimed Victor Emmanuel King of Italy. Insurrections have also broken out in the Papal States, and the flag of Victor Emmanuel is hoisted in several towns. This has thrown the Papal Government into great confusion. Whether France will interfere to save the Pope is not known.

An arrival at New Orleans brings an account which is thought to be highly probable, that the celebrated filibuster, Walker, who has long been thwarted in his attempts to take possession of Nicaragua, Honduras, Sonora, &c., and captured, has been shot by the Honduran authorities, together with Col. Radler, his second in command. The remainder of the filibuster party were allowed to leave the country unmolested.

It was indeed high time that this daring filibuster met with his deserved fate. He has troubled our Government, and those he intended to take possession of, too long already, and caused the destruction of life and property and reputation so heavily, that public opinion has pronounced him worthy of death long since. He has hitherto managed to escape; but justice has dealt with him at last, if reports from Honduras be true.

A disastrous conflagration took place at Fort Smith, Arkansas, on Thursday last. The City Hotel, the Garrison block of buildings, and the Post office, with about 4,000 letters, and other buildings, were destroyed. The loss is about 200,000.

Accidents to Balloonists. Professor Wess was ascending in his balloon at Petersburg, Va., on Thursday afternoon last. When he was about a mile high, he discovered a rent from which the gas was escaping. He prepared to descend, and when about 1,000 feet from the earth, the fissure rapidly enlarged, and the balloon fell rapidly. He was for some time unable to move, but we learn he is not seriously injured. He made a narrow escape indeed.

Mr. Moxey, the balloonist, also met with a serious accident a few days ago at Albany. He traveled 30 miles in 20 minutes, and in attempting to land was caught in a tornado and dashed against a stone wall, knocking him senseless. He was then dragged along the ground at a fearful rate, and struck twice, the blowing him out. He was not conscious for half an hour, when he seriously injured. His escape from instant death was almost miraculous, as the balloon was falling along at the rate of a mile a minute, when he was dashed against the stone wall.

The Philadelphia papers announce that Henry Winter Davis, of Maryland, writes to the Bell and Everett men of Easton, Pa., that hereafter he shall speak in favor of the election of Lincoln.

Another of the Compiler's Fibs. "He (the editor of the Sentinel) is at heart as bitter in his Know-Nothingism as they (the Know Nothings) are." This is another of the beauties of the Compiler. That paper well knows that we have no affinity for Know Nothingism; whilst he and his party are making bargains with them all around, in order to keep possession of the leaves and fishes. The Compiler reminds us of the story they tell of the Ostrich.—That fleet bird, when pursued, runs its head only into the sand, thinking, poor bird, that it is safe from observation; just so, the Compiler and his political friends are driving bargains all around with Know Nothings; and because they are constantly accusing others, they think they are not observed. Their head is in the sand; but the whole body is openly exposed to view. It won't do.

Well, really, we are getting ashamed of the reputation of our County, as the Compiler is read abroad, we suppose, by Editors, at least—that paper being so persistent in its statements of what its Editor, as well as every other one, must know is not historically correct. Now, he still repeats the charge that Mr. Lincoln assisted to "slaughter" Henry Clay! The whole career of Abraham Lincoln has been under the enlightened and noble political sentiment of Henry Clay—he was ever his friend—ever held the same high and noble principles—ever was bold, honest, sincere in their advocacy—ever sustained the generous, whole-souled Statesman of Kentucky; and yet now, at this day, the Compiler will persist in misleading its readers on the subject—and making him an enemy of the man he loved and followed. How absurd! (we were about to say) but it is worse. Why, he might as well say that the Editor of the Sentinel aided in the persecution and "slaughtering" of Henry Clay, as charge it upon Abraham Lincoln! Make the assertion against us—we are here, and the people are here, to defend us; but do not, we entreat you, make it against a man as pure, and purer, than most of the politicians of the day. He is a man whom the people now "delight to honor," and all the shafts of bitter calumny fall harmless at his feet. Our friend of the Compiler might just as well "play honest" for once, and stop his fibbing and quibbling.

There was a large and enthusiastic People's mass meeting at Chambersburg, on Thursday last, which was addressed by Joseph Casey, Esq., Col. Curtin, and Hon. E. McPherson. The addresses were all most masterly and impressive. The latter, says a person present, made, I think, one of the strongest efforts for his principles I ever listened to. Mr. McPherson has a happy faculty of sustaining his arguments with facts that allow no rejoinder, and figures that never lie." Carl Schurz spoke in the evening to his German friends.

There was an immense mass meeting at Catlet on Friday last, said to be the largest and most respectable meeting held there for the last twenty years. Hon. B. F. Junkin, Col. Curtin, the candidate for Governor, Joseph Casey, Esq., Carl Schurz, and John C. Kunkle, Esq., of Harrisburg, addressed the large assemblage. All passed off very handsomely, and the delighted listeners went to their homes, fully waked up to energy in the good cause.

The Kilkenny Cats. Deisell V. Johnson, the candidate for the Vice Presidency on the Douglas ticket, made a speech at Chambersburg the other day, which has caused the most intense excitement among the friends of Breckenridge and Bell. He denounced Breckenridge as a disorganizer and a disunionist, as selfish ambitious, and conniving, ever plotting for the realization of his own aspirations, even if it was at the expense of his party's strength, its principles, vitality and his country's glory. As to John Bell, he said he was one of those fossil remains that are produced as the explorers of the catacombs of Egypt produce mummies, to puzzle the curious by a waste of time which could be more usefully employed. He represented a blank platform. That he was only put forward by mercenary interests for their own aggrandizement, &c. &c. Both the Breckenridge and Bell parties are exasperated to their highest and fiercest passions, declaring that either the loquacious North Carolinian must be silenced, or he will be summarily dealt with at the hands of the people of this State.

There was a large and spirited Railroad meeting at Waynesboro', on Saturday week, at which, says the Record, "D. WILKS, Esq., of Gettysburg, delivered a most excellent address. His remarks upon the beneficial effects to be derived from the construction of this road by our own people were of the most convincing character." The amount subscribed to the road is already $50,000.

The Prince of Wales is now in the U. States. The last accounts left him at Chicago. He has been received with great enthusiasm wherever he goes. He travels under the title of Lord Renfrew. A splendid new car has been sent on from Philadelphia, for his use and that of the Royal party, to be under their special control.—The route is to be via Pittsburgh to Harrisburg, and thence by the Northern Central to Baltimore and Washington. Lord Renfrew will have the use of the royal car to Baltimore, and perhaps to Washington.

The Editor of the Compiler.

The Editor of the Compiler, and some of his correspondents, appear to have a very great deal of anxiety about our Member of Congress. They know he must be elected by honest means; but if trickery and falsehood and quibbling can keep him out, they are determined they shall all be called into requisition on the occasion. And the great broad basis on which they start, or at least one of them, is, that he voted for Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, as Speaker of the House of Representatives, and that Mr. Sherman had, at one time, recommended a certain book, commonly called the "Helper Book," which, in many of its sentiments, were ultra Abolition. Now, the Editor of the Compiler knows, if his correspondent does not, that Mr. Sherman's skirts were completely cleared of this enormous charge. When he placed his name to the article alluded to, he did not know its sentiments—he had not read it thoroughly, but merely deemed it some ordinary electioneering paper, and never dreamed of the extent to which the Book went. He completely cleared himself of all its strong and dangerous tendencies, openly and in a manly manner, and stood, as he now stands, before the country, in the clear, decided attitude we all do—opposition to the extension of Slavery beyond its present limits, and no interference with it where it now constitutionally exists! These are the opinions of the Conservatives of the North, these are the opinions of JOHN SHERMAN, of Ohio, for whom Mr. McPherson voted as Speaker, and these are the opinions of our candidate for Congress, the Hon. EDWARD MCPHERSON; and all the Compiler and its kindred abusive prints can say to change it, or public opinion on the subject, are but "idle wind"—they cannot—they will not—make any impression upon thinking men. You may make charges; but when they have no foundation, but persistent falsehood, the superstructure must fall to the ground, as all such fabrics do, in the course of nature. Mr. McPherson's record is clean—the people know it—and they are determined to honor a faithful public servant, who has done his duty honestly, conscientiously and satisfactorily, by re-electing him.

Every member of Congress is entitled by law to receive a certain amount of Congressional documents, published and forwarded by the Government. These, of course, our member receives, as do all the others. This the Compiler knows—and yet he has a very little and very disputable article on the subject, and calls it "electioneering Thunder." It is true, that Mr. McPherson does not retain these documents, but gives them to political friends or opponents, without regard to party, honorable as he is, and yet the Compiler calls this "electioneering." How little does he appreciate that high, generous feeling, that will do a clever act, and scatter any favor he can. The Compiler is not so disinterested.

Terrific Gale in the Gulf of Mexico. A fearful and destructive storm occurred in the Gulf of Mexico, on the 15th inst., which has not had its parallel for fury and destructiveness for many years. The details are lamentable. In Mobile, five steamboats were destroyed, and other property destroyed to the amount of a million of dollars. One-third of the city was under water, and many lives lost. The towns of Biloxi, Mississippi, Belize, Louisiana, and Mobile are all in ruins, and many lives lost. A great number of vessels were driven ashore, and lost. The damage is estimated at two millions of dollars!
